The Program

Lakeside Medical Center received accreditation to offer a new Family Medicine program, which began in July 2011. The three-year program has five residency positions each year, for a total of 15 positions (see curriculum).

The hospital serves as the main clinical training site and partners with academic and community organizations, including Nova Southeastern University, the Palm Beach County Health Department and Florida Community Health Centers to provide a diversified and rewarding educational experience for our residents.

- The program utilizes the latest video teleconferencing technology to expand and complete the resident's educational experience.
- Didactic activities include a daily morning report, specialty noon lectures and interactive discussions with the teaching faculty.
- Distance learning via video teleconferencing also includes multi-specialty lectures and specialty courses.
